MRAN. -Some person connected with the circus of Haight & Chambers, which exhibited here last Monday, practiced impositions upon our people, the nature of which is altogether unpardonable. We allude to the one who, having the confidence of the gentlemanly managers, was entrusted with the unsuspecting was in this manner: When a domestics, prints, plaids, etc. gentleman stepped up to the ticket box to procure tickets, the price of which being $1 each, and passed in a $5, $10 or $20 bill, as the case might be, the seller promptly filled the demand, but took good care to so arrange the return change that, in the hurry and bustle naturally attending such occasions, one bill, would be counted twice. The trick, or theft, which ever it may be called, was sure to win, so nicely was it executed. For instance; a person would call for one ticket and pass in a $5 note; the ticket was furnished and four dollars in change returned to the purchaser, or at least what appeared to be four dollars, but the truth, in many cases, was that only three dollars was given, one of the center bills being folded over in such a manner as to induce the unsuspecting to believe that he had been fairly dealt with. We do not, nor cannot believe that the managers of the popular Haight & Chambers' circus are parties to the fraud practiced here, and hope that, in case this paragraph falls under their eyes, that they will ferit out the guilty party and teach him that honesty is the best policy; and that especially among so generous a people as compose the citizens of Hardeman, it is a bad policy for a dishonest man to tarnish the name of those who were looked upon as gentlemen and friends. It is useless to call can question. It is understood it will be names, but if necessary, we can do so.

Conn., Conn. Conn. - One dollar and sixty cents per bushel is demanded and paid for corn is this place! In southern Kentucky they have more than a sufficiency of corn. Would it not pay some person to ship a large lot of the high-priced article and put it on sale in this market? There's money in it. Farther south corn commands a still higher figure. Cotton, cotton, cotton-it's the blood sucker of all that is made in this section. It is to be hoped that the lessons of this season will teach our farmers to put a little more corn in the ground next spring and not quite so much of the back-bone of Yankeedom. Let us be self-sustaining.
